Join us at the end of an extraordinary year as we celebrate all that has been achieved by physics teachers for their students during the covid crisis. Supported by the University of Birmingham School of Physics and Astronomy, the Institute of Physics and the Ogden Trust this free event is not a conference, it is a celebration, so grab a drink and some snacks and join us! There will be the possibility to apply for a special 'thank you' gift to recognise the efforts you have made. The programme will include a keynote from multi-award winning comedian, explorer, presenter and author Tim FitzHigham and there will also be opportunity to talk physics with likeminded colleagues, academic physicists and representatives from organisations that support physics teachers.
